1. Introduction

Bank J. Safra Sarasin (Gibraltar) Ltd. (the “Bank”, “we”, “us” “our”) is part of the J. Safra Sarasin Group and provides investment services as a part of its private banking business. This order execution policy summary covers the arrangements we have implemented to manage the execution and handling of your orders as a client (the “client” or “you”). Where we agree to execute your order, we will do so by using an affiliate in the Bank’s group located in Switzerland.

For ease of reading, we have included a glossary of terms in Appendix 2.

1.1. Purpose

The Bank is subject to the regulatory requirements for execution and order handling in the Financial Conduct Authority’s Handbook of rules and guidance.

We will take all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result for our clients when executing orders or receiving and transmitting orders on the client’s behalf, taking into account price, costs, speed, likelihood of execution and settlement, size, nature and any other relevant consideration to the execution of the order (these are the “execution factors”).

We have implemented an order execution policy and arrangements for execution and order handling with a view to achieving the best possible results on an ongoing basis (sometimes referred to as “best execution”). This does not guarantee that the best possible result will be achieved in every individual transaction.

If you have any questions about the Bank’s policy or execution activities or if you have any additional execution requirements, please contact your representative at the Bank.

By giving us your order you are giving your consent to this policy.

2. Scope

The execution principles apply to orders for trades in the financial instruments listed in Appendix 1 that we execute or receive and transmit for execution on behalf of retail or professional clients. The list in Appendix 1 does not mean that all financial instruments are available to clients. The execution policy does not apply to transactions executed with clients categorised as eligible counterparties.

When we receive a client order and transmit it to a third party for execution this is known as RTO, or Reception and Transmission of Orders.

Should you have a direct client relationship with another booking centre in the Bank’s group and we operate as the service centre we may be able to send your order directly to that booking centre. In the event that we were to provide this service to you, the Bank will be unable to apply its policy by sending your order to one of a range of different recipient entities as you have told us to send it to the booking centre. The booking centre’s order execution policies will apply and we will not be responsible to you for the execution approach that is applied by the booking centre (please see section 3, below, for further considerations that apply).

In any other case, we generally ensure that the execution principles of the third party sufficiently cover the best execution requirements. We will monitor the effectiveness of the recipient firm’s execution arrangements on an on-going basis.

3. Client Instructions

Where a client has placed an order with specific instructions in respect to the execution or handling of the order or part of the order (i.e. choice of trading venue, the issuer of an instrument or recipient of the order), we will follow the instruction to the extent it is possible for us to do so and also follow our execution and order handling policy to the extent possible, i.e. on any parts of the order that are not covered by the specific instructions. You may do so after having been shown several options by us or without us showing you execution options. When you provide instructions on orders this is likely to prevent us from taking the steps we otherwise would to obtain the best possible result in respect of the elements covered by those instructions. The instructions may also influence the results on other aspects of the order.

In such circumstances we may seek to discuss the potential impact of the instruction with you where the nature of the order permits, but we are under no obligation to do so.

Order Execution

Client instructions take precedence over the execution principles. When such instructions are given, we are exempt from our usual obligations within the scope of the instructions and the obligation to achieve best execution is deemed to be fulfilled within the scope of the instructions given.

4. Best Execution

4.1. Execution Factors

When executing an order on behalf of a client, we will take all sufficient steps to execute the order in a way that is intended to achieve the best possible result for the client. We will take into account the following execution factors:

- price, aiming to achieve the best possible price for the client;
- size of the order and the available market liquidity;
- speed of execution;
- execution costs;
- likelihood of execution and settlement;
- nature of the order; and
- any other consideration relevant to the execution of the order (e.g. such as potential market impact).

Total consideration (price plus third party execution cost) will ordinarily merit a high relative importance in obtaining the best possible result. However, the execution of an order in a way that is most favourable for the client involves the exercise of commercial judgement in the context of client categorisation, available market information and market restrictions. As such for some clients, orders, financial instruments, markets or market conditions, we may determine that other execution factors shall have the same importance or shall take precedence over total consideration in obtaining the best possible result. For the qualitative report on our execution in practice, please follow this link: http://www.jsafrasarasin.com.gi/internet/gi-ldn/qualitative_report_rts28_ldn.pdf.pdf.

4.2. Execution Venues

In the absence of a client instruction, we, or a broker that directly or indirectly receives the order for execution, may execute client orders using one of a range of execution venues, which may include Regulated Markets, Multilateral Trading Facilities (“MTF”), Organised Trading Facilities (“OTF”) Systematic Internalisers or Market Makers. The selection of the execution venue will be based on which venue (or venues) are likely to provide the best overall result for the clients on an on-going basis.

Currently, where we have agreed to execute your order, we will do so by using an affiliate in the Bank’s group located in Switzerland. The selection of our head office as the trading venue takes into account the execution factors, as reflected in the execution and order handling policy of our affiliate.

After careful consideration of the alternatives, we may act as execution venue and may use an internal method of execution, if we consider this advantageous to the client. For the top five execution venues report, please follow this link: http://www.jsafrasarasin.com.gi/internet/gi-ldn/top_five_reports_rts28_ldn.pdf.

Currently, the Bank indirectly uses the following execution venue for the following instruments:

Swiss equities and listed derivatives: Swiss equities and listed derivatives are traded on the SIX Swiss Exchange. Our group’s head office in Switzerland is a member of the SIX Swiss Exchange and places the orders directly.

Other equities, including IPOs: We place an order with our head office in Switzerland, which maintains a selected network of global brokers and brokers with local expertise.

Bonds: Swiss bonds, including exchange traded certificates (if listed on the SIX Swiss Exchange) are directly traded on the SIX Swiss Exchange. Other bonds and exchange trade certificates not listed on the SIX Swiss Exchange are mainly executed OTC through market makers/issuers, who quote bid and ask prices. Quotes are listed and ranked on Bloomberg, which gives traders a market reference price prior to execution. The trader subsequently selects the market maker/issuer, the lead manager, the broker or the exchange/venue based on experience. Orders can only be executed with approved counterparties. The decision is mostly liquidity driven. The trader may also delay execution due to price or liquidity issues that might negatively affect the order. Subscriptions to IPO new issues are passed on to the lead manager or another syndicate member of that issue for execution.

Funds: Funds that are not listed on an exchange, for example open-ended collective investment scheme units, are mainly traded directly through the fund administrator by issuing and redeeming units. A minority of funds (i.e. exchange traded funds/ETFs) is listed and might be traded directly on one or more market venues. When there is a choice between an exchange and the fund administrator, the trader decides, based on experience, where to execute the order, taking liquidity into consideration in order to ensure proper execution.

Structured products: When products are not listed on an exchange, and subject to any specific instructions from the client, our affiliate will aim to provide or negotiate fair and competitive prices for structured products by seeking quotes from several potential issues to enable the client to select between them. The client's order is then specific to the issues and the Bank has no obligation regarding best execution in selecting the issuer or the economic characteristics of the product. Where the Bank is providing advice on the structured products, then the Bank may make the selection or the Bank may provide alternative options to the client with a recommendation.

When products are listed on an exchange (e.g. on SIX Structured Products Exchange AG), best execution in accordance with the best execution factors will be ensured by the trader executing the order.

Financial futures / traded options: EUREX listed options and financial futures are traded by the Bank directly on this particular exchange, where our affiliate acts as a member. Other listed options and financial futures are traded on the relevant exchange through a limited number of preferred brokers that seek to ensure best execution.

4.3. Execution Costs

When executing orders on a client's behalf, we may charge a fee, commission or apply a mark-up or spread to the total consideration (price plus third party execution cost). These charges will be made to cover the costs and risks associated with the transaction.

5. Order Execution outside of a Regulated Market, MTF or OTF

We or an affiliate may decide that in certain circumstances it would be beneficial to execute all or part of an order outside a trading venue. Whilst this may provide the advantage of an improved execution price and faster execution, the following additional risks may be incurred:

- Transactions will not be subject to the rules of Trading Venues, which are designed to provide for a fair and orderly treatment of orders;
- Transactions will not benefit from additional but unpublished liquidity, such as hidden limit orders that may be available on trading venues;
- Execution may not benefit from additional pre- and post-trade transparency in respect of pricing and liquidity that may be required to be published by trading venues; and
- For transactions executed away from a trading venue a settlement risk may be incurred as transactions will be subject to counterparty risk and will not be covered by the relevant clearing and settlement rules of the trading venue and relevant central counterparty or clearing house.

In placing an initial order, clients give their general approval to orders being executed outside a regulated market, OTF or MTF. In addition, clients acknowledge and agree that we or our affiliate may not make public client limit orders which are not immediately executed under prevailing market conditions.

6. Restrictions

Where we are subject to internal trading restrictions it may not be possible to accept a client order and the client will be notified of this fact at the time of order receipt.
